Information that is contained in the Analytics may be current as of the date of its preparation and may materially change in the future. When posting the Analytics on the Site, the Company does not undertake any liabilities to monitor relevancy of the data contained in it, to amend or update irrelevant data or to correct any discrepancies or errors detected after the date of posting the Analytics on the Site.

The Company, Members of its Governing Bodies and the third parties that participate in the preparation of information posted on the Site do not provide any assurance of circumstances or guarantees, and do not undertake other liabilities in relation to validity, completeness, relevance and neutrality of the information that is available on the Site. None of the information is a basis for the occurrence of contractual or tort liabilities between the Company, its affiliates, Members of the Governing Bodies of the Company and/or its affiliates, their employees and consultants (as one party) and Site visitors or any third parties (as the other party).

The Company, its affiliates, Members of the Governing Bodies of the Company and/or its affiliates, their employees and consultants are not liable for any direct or indirect damages to the Site visitor or any other person that may occur in connection with the Site, its content, as a result of accessing the Site, as well as of copying or the reproduction of the information containing on the Site.

The above limitations do not cover the responsibility directly stipulated in the applicable legislation of the Russian Federation that occurs in connection with mandatory disclosure by the Company of the information in the stock market.

Statements related to the future

Any information on plans, perspectives and any future events available on the Site are ambiguous and may materially differ from the facts, actions and events that will actually take place or happen in the future. None of the information on the Site may be considered as a guarantee, assurance of circumstances or a liability in relation to occurrence, validity, feasibility, attainability of the plans, as well as any future facts, actions and events.

Risks, when performing financial transactions

Performing transactions with stocks implies risks, i.e. the possibility of damage occurrence, when performing financial transactions with stocks, which are connected with a potentially unfavorable impact of the various factors that may impact both all and specific stock market operators. Price of stocks that belong to some persons may both grow and decrease, and its growth in the past does not imply growth in the future.

Purchasing of issuer shares connected in particular with the risk of the issuer bankruptcy (which is exhibited as a sharp drop of the issuer share price in case of the issuer's insolvency or in anticipation of such insolvency), as well as with the liquidity risk (which is exhibited as the decline of the possibility to sell the stocks at the required price, connected with the decline in demand for them).

Using the Site
